COMMENT: “Health and safety is the main concern of every athlete who plays this game. A concerned athlete needs to take matters into his own hands and build the right team of health and wellness experts who will look out for the best interest of the individual athlete. No longer can a player expect the team to properly care for all aspects of the athletes health and well being. What I would love to see is the integration of team medical practitioners working with the inner team of individual athletes to be able to complement their care. I believe this would result in longer, stronger fitter faster careers, healthier and longer post NFL lives, and higher employee satisfaction!”
